TO FIGHT FOR "GOATS"

A great meeting of protest against the firing of Police Captain Mahoney and Lieut. Burns will be held in the West Side Auditorium, South Center avenue and West Taylor street, tonight.

The meeting has been arranged by friends of the two officers who were made goats in the so-called "Canadian bank robbery" case.

A number of speakers will address the meeting, and demand that the two men be granted a rehearing.

A REAL MOTHER

Los Angeles, Oct. 17.—When Fred Snodgrass muffed that fly of Engle's in the tenth inning at Boston yesterday, his mother, who lives here, fainted.

She was one of those who heard the returns at a local theater and watched the game closely. She collapsed after her son's fatal error and was escorted from the theater, crying.

POLICEMEN ON STAND

Court House, Salem, Mass., Oct. 17.—Lawrence policemen were chief witnesses at trial of Joe Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Joe Caruso today.

First was Michael A. Barry.

Barry said he, Giovannitti and Policeman Gallagher held conversation in Lawrence drug store soon after first rioting.

Said Giovannitti told Gallagher that the scabs would need to get out of the mills or get their heads broken by the I. W. W.

Under cross-examination by Atty. Peters, Barry admitted that he "had brushed up his memory" since his testimony at the preliminary Ettor-Giovannitti hearing in the Lawrence police court.

Gallagher followed Barry. Gallagher tried to be funny. Judge Quinn threatened to clear court room if there were any laughing.

Gallagher admitted that it had been said that he got on the Lawrence police force through the influence of the Wool Trust, for which he at one time worked.

Gallagher also said that he thought the proceedings in the Lawrence police court had been hurried by the district attorney.

Gallagher said that he had not been in sympathy with either the mill owners or the strikers during the strike. Soon after, Atty. Peters forced him to admit that he had argued with Giovannitti against the strike.

RANK CONDITIONS

Coroner Peter M. Hoffman has submitted his report for the years 1908-11.

That report shows a most terrible condition of affairs in Chicago.

Only 38.6 of the people who died in Chicago during those years died from natural causes.
